Senator Gershaw Writes

The Prairie Farm Assistance Act has been in operation since 1939. The object is to assist the farmer when there is a partial or complete crop failure. The amount paid up by the government up to 1944 was $46,986,161.11. A levy of 1 per cent was deducted and this has amounted to $19,291,104.41.

If an emergency year is declared payments are made to those having a yield of from 4 to 8 bushels per acre $1.50 per acre. If the yield is less than 4 bushels then the payment is $2.50 per acre provided that no award under this action shall be made with respect to more than 30 acres of the cultivated land of the farmer.

If a crop failure year is declared the government may pay the farmer $2.50 per acre for half his cultivated acreage up to 300 acres. This can be declared whenever the board finds the average yield of wheat as the re-

An effort may be made this year to unite these two sections so that a higher rate per acre can be paid.

No person shall be considered to be a farmer under the Act unless:

1. He is an owner or tenant of the farm from May 1st to November 1st in the year (If the farmer should die during those months payment can be made under certain conditions.)

2. He lives on the farm and his primary occupation is farming or he lives within 20 miles of the farm and has no occupation other than farming.

3. He is responsible for the farm operations and the disposal of the proceeds of the farm.

4. If residing with a brother or parent, is 20 years old and operates the farm as a separate unit and the farm contains quarter section of land.

No award shall be made on the following: experimental farms, market gardens, ranching lands, Indian reservations, submarginal lands that have been ordered abandoned by provincial statutes.

Irrigated land on which the yield per acre is more than 12 bushels of wheat or the equivalent in value of other crops.

Any farm unit containing more than 50 acres of irrigable land which forms part of an irrigation system except when the yield per acre of such irrigable portion of the farm is 12 bushels or less of wheat or the equivalent in value of other crops.

Local Legion Branch Explains Their Position

Editor Gleichen Call:

The Gleichen Branch of the Canadian Legion, R.E.S.L., would like to draw attention to the fact that there exists in this community a misconception of policy relating to the attitude of the Legion as an organization in respect to the erection of the proposed Recreation Centre, and we would like at this time to endeavor to clarify the facts in regard to same.

Last fall curling had grown to such proportions that it was found that the present curling rink was not large enough to accommodate this sport and the curlers decided to build a new rink for which purpose a considerable sum of money had been pledged by the public. Plans were drawn up for the new rink, and it was suggested by the Curling Club that a room be included in the new building for the Legion. The Legion took the matter up with higher Legion authorities and was advised that it could not be affiliated with another organization and be a Legion, and it was found necessary to reject this very generous offer of the Curling Club.

In the meantime, however, a few well-meaning people of the town and district decided to show their appreciation to the returning personnel by erecting a Legion Hall as a memorial, or remodelling the I.O.O.F. hall which the town had already given to the Legion. At this time a Citizens Committee was formed to devise ways and means of raising the necessary funds and with this in mind the committee approached the Legion. To find out just what funds they would require. When the Legion brought in the estimate the amount was considered too much to put into an old building and it was suggested at that time that the Legion did not need a hall that the community really needed was a recreation centre. It was then decided to combine the Curling Rink with the Recreation Centre, and a committee was formed, which is now known as the Gleichen Memorial Recreation Committee. A meeting was held in February and it was agreed by all present at that meeting that we all combine our efforts to reach an objective of $7,000 for the purpose of erecting a Recreation Centre, to be known as the Gleichen Memorial Recreation Centre.

Now it can easily be seen that the Legion as an organization, has nothing whatever to do with the building except for the fact that the Veterans will co-operate and help in every way possible. Any funds, therefore, solicited under the name of the Canadian Legion Hall Fund for this project is erroneous because it leads to the conception that it is a Legion Hall that is being built—it will not be a Legion Hall. The Legion is already in possession of a hall of its own which it intends to remodel, but up to the time of printing no funds have been solicited for this purpose.

However, like to state here that being none to flush we would greatly appreciate any donations, large or small, that anyone feels able to give.

We would like to stress the fact that the Veterans are 100 percent behind the building of a Recreation Centre and it is hoped that all those who made commitments with respect to the construction of the Recreation Centre will fulfill their obligations whenever and as soon as possible so that the work may go on. After all, we are all in this thing together to show our gratitude and thankfulness to those boys and girls who came back, and those who did not. We are confident that the citizens of Gleichen and district will not let any misunderstanding get in their way of completing such a fine project.

The most efficient way in which we can send increased bulk shipments of WHEAT, MEAT, CHEESE and EGGS to needy countries is through the Canadian government food Boards. These increased bulk shipments can only be made providing we reduce our own consumption. Here are five important ways by which we can make greater quantities of food available for export:

- (1) BUY AND USE LESS BREAD, FLOUR AND OTHER WHEAT PRODUCTS, MEAT, CHEESE AND EGGS. SUBSTITUTE VEGETABLES, FRUIT AND FISH WHERE POSSIBLE.
- (2) KEEP YOUR HOME STOCKS LOW—BUY ONLY COUPONS YOU CAN SPARE. ENOUGH FOR IMMEDIATE REQUIREMENTS.

His girl, sitting in the cocktail lounge, was conscious of some one leaning over her table. She stopped searching for matches in her pocketbook and looked up.

He stood there tall and straight wearing a first lieutenant's uniform. His face was grave but pleasant. He said, "Everybody in this place is talking to someone. May I talk to you?"

He didn't answer immediately. Her eyes closed to narrow slits. A flush crept over his face. Nervously, she brushed her hair back from her forehead when she finally said, "I guess so," he already was seated.

He suggested another drink. She nodded assent. He said, "My name is Peter and I am going to kidnap you."

At that she laughed. "My name is Julie and I'm making a train in exactly half an hour."

"Hm, Julie! I always liked that name. You are going home."

"No, I live here."

"But your accent is southern."

"My parents live in the south. That is where I'm from."

"That is where you were going," he said with a grin. "Remember, I'm going to kidnap you."

She glanced at the clock, raised her glass in a silent toast. "I must hurry."

"Oh, no, Julie. You have some questions to answer," said Peter gravely. "Are you married to a northern?" she nodded negatively. "Engaged?"

"No."

"Good, you are practically kidnapped," said Peter with enthusiasm. Interposing her second glass, she drank, he asked, "You wouldn't run away from a soldier whose leave ends at midnight tomorrow, would you?"

She abruptly set down her glass and looked at his five buttons, stars and purple heart medal. "No," she said in a low voice, "I wouldn't run away. Where do you want to go from here, lieutenant?"

He reminded her that his name was Peter, and he mentioned a spot on the east side which used to serve the best steaks in the world and was frequented by "newspaper" people.

"That is the place for us," she said, "if it is what you want."

Walking from the lounge, he put his arm through hers and held her hand.

"Peter," she asked suddenly, "are you married?"

"No, though I was once. But she couldn't bear me."

She pressed his hand. "She must have been crazy."

"No," Peter disagreed. "she was very sweet fundamentally. A little too young and perhaps a little spoiled. Also, I was eight years younger than I am now and a newspaper reporter slightly on the screwy side. I blamed her terribly at first. But, later on, I learned better. She didn't know the score and I didn't make much of an effort to straighten her out. She hadn't been around much and she believed we were all equals."

"I see," she murmured. They got into a cab. "You make a great many excuses for her."

He gave her a level look. "She was very dear to me. How dear I didn't realize at the time."

Changing the subject, he asked why she had come to New York.

"There were many reasons," she said softly, "but mainly I wanted to change myself."

"Change yourself?"

"Yes," she continued gravely. "Once a man I was very fond of accused me of being a self-centered little snob who didn't do much more than show horses, dance, and get into tantrums." She laughed self-deprecatingly. "I really didn't know I stood he was right so I tried to do something about it."

"And did you succeed, Julie?"

"I believe so. At any rate, I have made friends in and out of the store where I have been working. And, so far, I haven't been forced for getting into any more tantrums."

"We're here, bud," the cabbie interrupted.

"Julie," he said then stopping, after he paid off the car.

"Julie," he repeated, removing his presser cap, "what suddenly doesn't appeal to me. It now is almost midnight and I only have until this time tomorrow. Will you think I am an awful wretch if I ask you to come with me to the borrowed apartment I have in and answer some of the hundreds of questions I want to ask you?"

"No Peter," she answered, without hesitation. "I won't think you are a wretch."

"Good girl," he declared, jauntily restoring his cap and waving for a taxi. She watched him and smiled. They rode in silence to the apartment but once inside Granville he held her.

"You know Julie," he said, "you are making my hours here perfect."

She bit down, Peter, she said drawing him toward the doorway. "I told me about your ex-wife. Now I'd like to tell you about my ex-husband." She gazed straight ahead and spoke in quiet, unemotional voice. "My ex-husband was a very nice fellow, too. I was selfish and possessive. I resented his wife; they seemed to have been in common with him. I told, and though he was very dear to me, we crashed."

"But," she turned to the silent man, "even now, four years later, I still think of him and smile. I don't hate, the way he suddenly burst into songs—even the way he always left me alone with the past. He never failed to annoy me. And I insisted on calling him by his first name. Cornelius, which he detested. I thought it dignified." She smiled warmly, reaching for a cigarette. "Silly, wasn't it? We really do have our moments, like wonderful days by the sea."

Taking the cigarette from her fingers, he pulled her into his arms and kissed her.

"Young and inexperienced, Julie, I would say. He put his hand under her chin. You are very dear to me, Julie, and I want you very much. Am I going to have you?"

"Oh, Pete," she answered. "I promise not to get annoyed if you leave the top of the toothpaste." She moved closer. "Whatever made me like the name Cornelius?"

He held out his dog tag for her to read. Cornelius Peter Granville. But looks, darling," he laughed, "that when the marriage bureau opens tomorrow you'll get that dignified name again."

"Oh, no," she exclaimed. "I've really changed, darling, this time I am not going to crash. I'll just be the wife of Peter Granville, newspaper reporter, now on leave to the Army."

Scientists Say That Mice, Bugs And Other Pests Destroy Huge Quantities Of Grain

World famine? Scientists say there more than enough grain in the world to feed all hungry people except for mice, bugs and other pests.

The scientists reported to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization that rodents, insects, mice and fungi moulder destroy, after harvest, one-tenth of the 725,000,000 tons of cereals, peas, beans and other products each year.

Thus this year's estimated loss of 72,500,000 tons is more than twice the 35,000,000 tons of wheat the world will eat about this year.

Rodents alone will eat 25,000,000 tons and insects will destroy 36,200,000 tons, the scientists said.

When Marjorie Sharp Intends To Be An Architect

Take a course in architectural drafting when Marjorie Sharp wants to get her discharge but Navy officials in Regina were a little doubtful about the idea at first.

They thought stenography or hair-dressing would be a more suitable profession for a woman than architectural drafting. Besides they had never heard of a female architect.

"Wasn't that more of a man's profession," they suggested. They hinted about Barbara Humphreys, V.L.A. architect at head office, and other top-notch women architects.

When Sharp said she didn't think so and suggested that they call Miss Blanche Lemco of the city planning office. "She might know about that," said when Sharp. "She's a female architect."

Miss Lemco was contacted by the Navy men and she explained that although it was supposed to be a man's world, female architects were not unusual as the Navy might suppose.

When Sharp will get her course in architectural drafting and she will be able to take it in Regina. A course in this subject is opening at the Canadian Vocational School there.

Why does she want to take up architectural drafting for a career? "I don't like typing or bookkeeping or anything of that sort," when Sharp explained.

Mathematics and drawing were her strong subjects when she attended Scott Collegiate. The family at 2920 Regina avenue, including son and daughter, and her father, considered When Sharp's choice of a career unorthodox, but they're getting used to the idea.

Length Of Canadian-American Line Is Really 5,653 Miles

OTTAWA.—That undefeatable Canadian-American border long has been and the salvation of after-dinner speakers, is 5,653—not the customary incorrect 5,000—miles long. Health Minister Claxton insisted here.

"And," he added in an address before a joint meeting of the House of Commons of Ottawa, N.Y., and Ottawa, every inch of it is undefeatable."

"In Rock Island, Vermont, while sitting in the harbor's dock you can get your hair cut in Canada and in the States allied in the United States. Not far from there, if you are driving along the highway from east to west you are in Canada, but from west to east you are in the United States."

"During a by-election in Quebec two election workers were moving from town to town forcefully canvassing votes for the man they supported. Down somewhere about the border they met a farmer who didn't respond much to their pressure. At last they gave him the punch-line: 'Remember, they're a man from your man's Division.' 'Well,' he replied, 'I don't know about Davidson. May seem strange for a man from Vermont, but my man's Roosevelt.'"

The Tax Assessors Office of the Canada Customs and Excise Department, Ottawa, said that the States-Canada border an old lady's jewelry store in the States was finally decided it was just inside the United States border.

Farmers who find it necessary to serve twelve meals or more to their temporary hired help may apply to the wartime prices and trade board for what are called transient labor rationals.

Where the person hired by the farmer for extra work stays longer than two weeks, the farmer is authorized to make use of his employee's ration book. In this way the employee is considered a member of the household, and the farmer may use his own ration book and ration coupons as they become valid.

It is improbable That Man Could Destroy The World

"Although many think he has altered know-how and equipment, it is not probable that man will be able to believe he owns it, and in this atomic age, even more so, he can destroy it, his million years of recent past is but a flash in the past to what preceded him, said Dr. R. E. Moore in his presidential address to the Royal Society of Canada, meeting in Toronto last night."

Dr. Moore spoke of rock formations found in Eastern Ontario and Southern Quebec indicating life of some kind, probably plant life, existing approximately 1,800,000,000 years ago.

As to the possibility of man destroying the planet, Dr. Moore said geologists and physicists agree it is "most improbable" that one terrible atomic bomb could blow up the earth. There is so little flammable material, such as uranium and thorium, scattered through the mass of inert material, that making up the earth that any explosion would not be proper, but it takes place in a purely local effect, he explained.

Eggs are a fine source of protein and contain essential vitamins and minerals. But those are things to keep quietly in the back of your mind. Just serve a dish as tasty and delicious as Baked Cheese Eggs, and there'll be no need for urging on your part to get anyone to finish and ask for more.

Baked Cheese Eggs

6 eggs
2 tablespoons sharp cheese spread
2 tablespoons salad dressing
2 tablespoons finely chopped green onions
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup corn flakes
1/2 teaspoon melted butter

Cook eggs in water just below boiling point about 20 minutes. Cover with cold water; remove shells. Cut eggs in halves lengthwise and remove yolks. Mash yolks and combine with salad dressing, green pepper, celery and seasonings. Fill egg whites, rounding up filling. Place in well-greased shallow baking dish. Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs and mix with butter. Sprinkle mixture crumbs over eggs. Bake in oven (375 deg. F.) about 15 minutes.

Yield: 4-6 servings (12 halves).

One of our China boys thought a good way to earn an odd dollar was to supply Indians with firewater. The experiment cost $50 much to his disgust.

(W. H. (Kippy) James has been appointed to take the census in this area and so bright and early Monday morning he started to make his calls.

A car of an east bound freight train jumped the track at Cluny Monday evening. The track was cleared a couple of hours later.

While driving a tractor one day last week the seat on which Slim Ferguson was riding broke throwing him to the ground. A westland plow being pulled by the tractor ran over him but he escaped being seriously injured. He suffered cuts and bruises on his legs.

After the accident he caught the tractor and rode it home to have his injuries attended to. A week from Friday, June 14th to be exact Cluny citizens will hold their annual sports day with a baseball tournament and other sports. The ball tournament is held to start at 12 o'clock noon. Various other sports will take place during the afternoon. A new ball is being built, something of the style of the Meadowbrook Hall and it is hoped to have it finished enough so that the big dance scheduled for the evening can be held in it.

The Indians have erected a corral at the old Matthew Cogg site and last Sunday practiced riding outlaws. Every rider, both white and Indian, with one exception, hit the dust. In the case of the one exception the critter didn't know how to do her stuff.

Ell Woods went to Banff last week to see if the hot springs would help his rheumatism. Colin Busby who is attending the University of Toronto was successful in passing his examinations with good marks.

Next Friday the people of Arrowwood will stage their annual sports. A baseball tournament and children's sports are on the program. Gleichen band will be in attendance.

IN MEMORIAM

ROBINSON, GNR. J. P.—In loving memory of our dear son who gave his life on D-Day, June 6th, 1944. Sadly missed by Mother and Dad.

Legion News

At a meeting of the Legion recently it was decided to take off the old platter on the inside of the I.O.O.F. hall and to replace it with all of the walls.

The Legion had engaged the Gleichen Community Hall for a dance and rodeo on the 12th of June but as this date clashed with the Indian Rally, the Legion cancelled their dance and carnival until a future date. A donation was received from Lou Michael of $100 to help remodel the old I.O.O.F. Hall now known as the Legion Hall.

The War Assets Corporation was being contacted in connection with furniture for the new hall.

A Teen Town was being organized in town and the Legion will make their hall available for the Teen Towners to hold their meetings, etc. if they wish to use it.

Taking The Census

To results of the 1946 census, which began June 1st when compiled will provide a most complete and accurate survey of the constitution of the population of the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and their general social and economic condition. Businessmen will procure information on the gainfully occupied population, the extent of unemployment and the earnings of wage earners. School boards will obtain data regarding school and pre-school population. Agriculturists will obtain information on farm population farm values, acreage, crops, livestock, etc. Town planning officials and others interested in housing problems will procure valuable data on the kind of homes in which people live, the extent of over crowding and other basic housing facts.

Every community has much to gain from such a survey. For example, it may be pointed out that census buildings and reports printed after the results of the census become available will carry the figures for your community as recorded at the census. These figures will provide basic information covering the census period or the personal and family characteristics of the resident population, housing, and the composition of the agriculture in your municipality.

Some indication of the scope of the present day census has been given in

JUNE IS CENSUS MONTH IN WESTERN CANADA

EVERY FIVE YEARS the Dominion Government assembles facts about Western Canada — facts which, when they are sorted out, will answer many vitally important questions concerning population, agriculture, housing etc.

To get these facts the Dominion Bureau of Statistics goes to the people themselves. No one else can supply so accurately the information which will guide all governments — Dominion, Provincial and Municipal — in policy-making during the critical years ahead.

This year is Census year, and June is Census month. A new and very important feature will be collection of facts on housing in cities and towns of over 5,000 population.

This 1946 Census is of special interest because it will provide the first reliable picture of Post-War Canada. It is the Reconstruction Census.

IT IS IMPORTANT TO YOU, AND YOU CAN HELP—by answering all questions frankly and correctly when the Official Enumerator calls at your home. There is no reason to withhold information; the enumerator is sworn to secrecy and you can place absolute trust in him. Both he and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics will hold all information in strictest confidence; it can never be used against you by any tax-collecting or other agency or in any court of law.

It is compulsory by law to answer the questions, but more important, it is good citizenship to reply . . . frankly and accurately.

the preceding paragraph, and it can be observed that it does not only with the people themselves, but directly with the people's institutions and affairs insofar as they relate to the determination of the basic human and material resources of the nation.

The 1946 census of population will give information regarding the age, sex, marital status, birthplace, residence, language, nationality, education, occupations, employment and earnings of residents of the prairie provinces. The 1946 census of agriculture will secure information on the farm population, farm labor, farm acreage and tenure, farm values, farm machinery, farm indebtedness and expenditures, condition of farm land, production of cereals and root crops, farm livestock, poultry and eggs dairying, etc. The 1946 census of housing will collect data on types of residence, material of construction, rooms, and the adequacy of dwelling space, living conveniences, heating, water, mail, gages and taxes, etc. The housing census will be taken in cities and towns of 5,000 population and over.

For the purpose of the census, the Statistic Act requires that the country be first divided into census districts corresponding as nearly as possible with the federal electoral divisions or constituencies for the time being—in this view of the association of the census with parliamentary representation. Each census district is then divided into census subdistricts or units of enumeration the later correspond where possible with electoral (polling) subdivisions throughout the country. For territories without established boundaries with electoral (polling) subdivisions special census divisions and subdivisions are created. Each census district is in charge of a supervisory census commissioner; under the commissioner a census enumerator is assigned to each census subdistrict. In outlining areas the Royal Canadian Mounted Police conduct the census, while the Indian Affairs Branch of the Department of Mines and Resources perform a like service for the Indian population on reserves or otherwise within its jurisdiction. The census is the only official coming into direct contact with the general public; he is it who makes the house to house and farm to farm census and who is primarily responsible for the details collected on the census schedules. After the enumerator has completed the census taking in his sub district, he schedules are returned to the office of the census commissioner.
